

Application to the Chicago Resilient Communities Monthly Cash Assistance Pilot

Welcome!

Thank you for your interest in the Chicago Resilient Communities Monthly Cash Assistance Pilot. This pilot is a $31.5 million dollar commitment from Mayor Lori Lightfoot and the City of Chicago to promote economic mobility and economic recovery in the wake of the COVID-19 pandemic. 5,000 households will be randomly selected through an open application to receive $500 per month for twelve months, with no strings attached. That means that there are no limitations on how the money can be spent. This cash assistance program will empower residents to decide how to best meet their financial needs and goals.

Research

This program also includes a research component to help the City of Chicago understand the impact of monthly unconditional cash payments on residents. The City will be working with the Inclusive Economy Lab at the University of Chicago to measure the effect of $500 per month on residents' financial stability and overall well-being. Research findings will inform current and future social services and policies and we would value your participation. Participation in the research study is voluntary and will not impact your application or your eligibility for the program. If you choose to participate in the study, you might have the opportunity to earn additional incentives for your participation in research activities, which include surveys, interviews, and observational learning. Depending on the research activities you are selected for and choose to complete, you can earn between $20 and $600 as a thank you for your participation. You will have an opportunity to opt in to research activities at the end of the application.

Frequently Asked Questions

Am I eligible for the Chicago Resilient Communities pilot?

Chicago residents who meet all of the following eligibility requirements are eligible to participate:

- You reside in the City of Chicago AND
- You are 18 years of age or older AND
- You have experienced economic hardship related to COVID-19 AND

 Your household income level falls at or below 250% of the Federal Poverty Level

The Federal Poverty Level is an income measure used by the government to determine eligibility for programs. It is based on household size - larger households will have higher income cutoffs than smaller households. If you are unsure about whether or not your household qualifies, you can use the following table to estimate.

- For individuals: $33,975
- For a family of 2: $45,775
- For a family of 3: $57,575
- For a family of 4: $69,375
- For a family of 5: $81,175
- For a family of 6: $92,975
- For a family of 7: $104,775
- For a family of 8: $116,575
- For a family of 9+: Add $11,800 for each extra person

City employees, full or part-time and households including City employees, are not eligible to apply under this program.

Who is running this program?

The Chicago Resilient Communities Pilot is an initiative within the City of Chicago Department of Family and Support Services (DFSS). The pilot will be administered by GiveDirectly, a nonprofit charitable organization contracted by DFSS. GiveDirectly is working with a tech partner, AidKit, to implement this program. You can expect to receive messages from them regarding your application and application status.

Ready to Apply?

Reminder: Later in the application, we will be asking you to upload supporting documentation related to your identity, residence, and income. A full list of approved documents can be found here. Please note that by filling out this application, you give GiveDirectly and AidKit the permission (1) to use the information collected to determine your eligibility; (2) to contact you regarding the status of your application; and (3) if you are deemed eligible, to include your household in the selection lottery. Your application does not commit you to participating in the program; if you are selected, you will have an opportunity to opt in or decline. By submitting this application, you also consent to be contacted by the Program Administrator, GiveDirectly, who will use your preferred mode of contact to follow up on your application and provide you important information.

Eligibility

The following questions will help us determine your eligibility for the program. Reminder: Only one representative from any eligible household i should apply. By filling this information out, you are acknowledging that you are responding on behalf of your household.

First, we need to understand whether you are a resident of Chicago.

Do you have a home address?

You will be asked to provide proof of residency at this address later in the application.

- Yes
- O No
- Please enter your current home address

17 S Wabash St, Wabash, IN 46992, USA

- Your address looks like it might be missing an apartment or unit number. Please confirm your address is complete.
 - My full address has been entered.
- Now, we want to understand more about your household income. You will be asked to provide documentation to support this information later in the application. Note, you will be asked to provide proof of income or attestation of no income for all adult members of your household.
- How many people live in your household ①, including yourself?

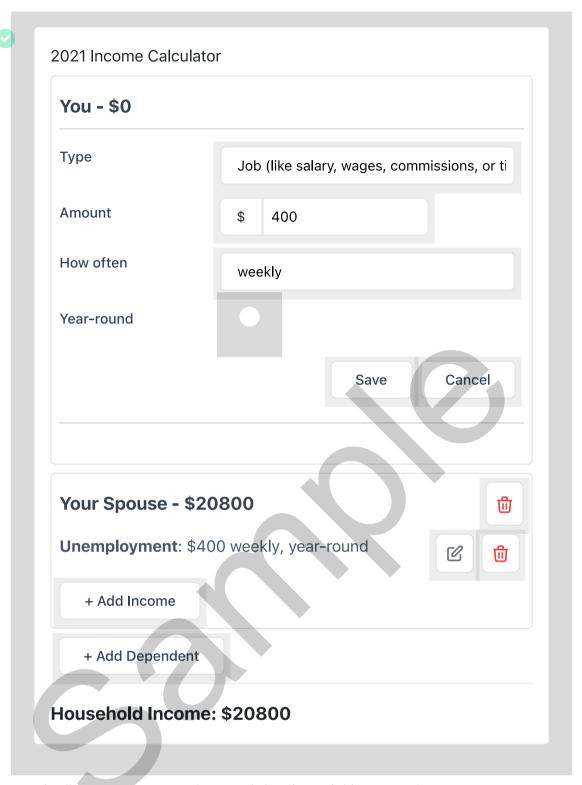

Your household includes yourself, your spouse, and any other family members who depend on you to cover most of their expenses (for example: children, students, or elderly, sick or disabled family members).

If you are living in a home or apartment with one or more other families who are financially independent, you are all considered separate households. Roommates and tenants should not be counted as part of your household.

What is your annual household pre-tax income? Include all money from jobs, gifts, loans, and cash benefits like Social Security, disability, retirement or pensions, and unemployment. If you're not sure then we can help you determine this.

- O I know my annual household income.
- I would like help calculating this

- Finally, we want to understand the financial impact of COVID-19 on your household.
- Have you or anyone in your household ① experienced any of the following examples of economic hardship as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic? Select all that apply.
 - ☐ My hours or wages were reduced due to COVID-19
 - \Box I was furloughed due to COVID-19
 - \square I was laid off due to COVID-19
 - ☐ I was unemployed for more than 90 days
 - ☐ I left work in order to care for self or others in my household
 - ☐ I lost childcare or home aide support
 - ☐ I left work because of medical complications due to COVID-19, or underlying condition vulnerable to COVID-19
 - ☐ My household medical expenses grew due to COVID-19
 - ☐ My household income was reduced due to the death of a household member
 - My business revenue declined significantly (business owner or selfemployed)
 - Other

STEP 7 OF 9 Consent

1/6

(Optional) The City of Chicago is partnering with the University of Chicago Inclusive Economy Lab on a research study to understand the impact of the Chicago Resilient Communities Pilot. We hope that results from the study will help the City better understand whether other programs like this can be successful in the future, as well as how existing City programs might be improved to serve communities across Chicago.

Are you willing to be contacted by the research team by email or SMS for study purposes?

Your answer will NOT impact your eligibility for this program.

(Optional) Participants in this pilot might benefit from services provided by the City of Chicago and their partners. In order to stay informed about services and programs that might benefit you, are you willing to be contacted by the City no more than monthly about services that may benefit you?

Your answer will NOT impact your eligibility for this program. Only your name, email, and phone number will be shared.

Before you apply, we want to ask you to consider participating in the research component of the study. Participation in this aspect of the pilot is OPTIONAL and will not impact your eligibility or selection. Thank you for considering!

Chicago Resilient Communities Pilot Evaluation: Informed Consent for Research

IRB22-0516

This section is optional.

Before you submit your application, the University of Chicago Inclusive Economy Lab would like to invite you to participate in a research study about the impact of the Chicago Resilient Communities Pilot. We hope that results from the study will help the City better understand if future cash assistance efforts can improve people's wellbeing and economic security. Findings from the study can also suggest how existing City programs and services might be improved to serve communities across Chicago.

Participation in the study is 100% optional and will not affect your eligibility or chances of being selected for the Chicago Resilient Communities Pilot. You can opt out of research activities any time.

If you choose to participate in the study, you might have the opportunity to earn additional incentive payments for your participation in surveys, interviews, and observational learning. You can also choose to give your permission for the study team to analyze data that already exists about you and your household in administrative data sources, like education records or credit scores. Our research team would like to use this data to help answer bigger questions about how cash assistance programs can affect participants' lives in the long term.

If you consent to participate in the study, data provided in your application to the Chicago Resilient Communities Cash Assistance Pilot will be accessed by the study team for research purposes.

If you have questions about the study:

- If you have questions about this study, please contact the research team at cashstudy@uchicago.edu or (773-834-9951). The study's Principal Investigator is Marianne Bertrand. Please note that we will not be able to answer questions about your application to the Chicago Resilient Communities Pilot.
- An Institutional Review Board (IRB) is an independent committee established to protect the rights of research subjects. If you have questions regarding your rights as a research subject, or if problems arise which you do not feel you can discuss with the Investigator, please contact the University of Chicago Institutional Review Board at (773) 702-2915 or sbs-irb@uchicago.edu.

Consent to Participate in Research Activities

This section describes some activities that you may be invited to complete if you choose to participate in the study. Not all participants who consent to research will be asked to complete all tasks.

Surveys

If you consent to participate in research, the research team may invite you to take surveys every few months throughout the study. If you are invited to complete these surveys, we will ask you to fill out a research survey about how you and your family are doing at the time, including questions about your housing situation, job, health, and finances. These surveys will take up to 30 minutes to complete, and we will send you a link by email or SMS/text to complete them at your convenience. If you are selected to complete these surveys and choose to participate, you will receive an incentive payment of at least $20 per survey.

Interviews and Observational Learning

A small number of participants will be randomly invited to participate in a series of interviews with a researcher throughout the program. If you are part of this group, researchers may invite you to spend time with researchers so they can learn a bit more about your day-to-day life. If you are invited and choose to participate in this part of the research, researchers will schedule some time with you to observe your everyday activities at home or in public spaces (to protect your privacy, researchers would not observe time you spend at work).

Participants who take part in interviews will receive a $50 cash incentive for each interview they complete. Participants who agree to participate in observational learning can earn up to $250 in incentive payments.

If you are selected to participate in this part of the research, we will contact you by phone, e-mail, or text message to see if you are interested in being part of this group.

Please note the following before consenting to participation in research activities:

- Participation in this study is completely optional and will not impact your application for the Chicago Resilient Communities Pilot. You can stop your participation at any point by contacting the research team at cashstudy@uchicago.edu or (773-834-9951).
- Your privacy is very important to us. All identifiable data that describes you and/or your household will be securely stored and will only be used for the purposes of this research study.
- The Inclusive Economy Lab and research team will take all measures to protect your data. While there are always risks of unintentional or malicious data breach in any research study, the data will be stored on secure servers that minimize this risk. In the improbable event of a data breach, the researchers will immediately inform you.
- Your anonymous data (unlinked from your name or other personal identifiers) may be shared with other researchers for future studies without your additional informed consent.
- By consenting to participate in research activities, you consent to receiving communications about the study via text message.
 Researchers will contact you using the cell phone number you provided in your application to the pilot. Message and data rates may apply.
- I, Sarah Moran, have read and understand the above information and acknowledge that how I answer this question will not affect my application for the Chicago Resilient Communities Cash Assistance pilot. I know that if I consent to participate in this research study, I may choose to stop my participation at any time by contacting the Inclusive Economy Lab research team at the phone number or email address above.
 - Yes, I consent to participate in research activities
 - No, I do not consent to participate in research activities

Consent to Analysis of Administrative Data

Administrative data is the information that government agencies and other organizations collect about people they serve. They use this information for operations, such as service delivery or program administration. Records can include demographic, financial, program participation, education, and workforce information. By linking records from different agencies, researchers can evaluate programs and identify trends. Their findings can be used to advocate for policies that improve outcomes for communities across Chicago.

Even though we are asking for your permission to be included in this data, the research team won't examine the records of any individual participants. Instead, we will merge all of the data into a large dataset to find patterns in outcomes among thousands of people over time. These patterns can help tell an important story about the long-term impact of the pilot, especially on the following outcomes:

- Employment, earnings and taxes;
- Education;
- Credit history and debt (granting access to this information will not impact your credit report or credit score in any way);
- Housing instability and homeless shelter entry

When requesting your records from administrative sources (from government agencies or commercial sources such as credit bureaus), we will send an encrypted file with a list of identifiers---names, dates of birth, address, etc.---to government agencies and other organizations that collect administrative data. Encryption means that your data is scrambled up so no one can see what it is. Even if the data were somehow taken, it can't be reassembled and read without a special key that only authorized people have. We don't share any other information with agencies beyond what they need to locate you in their records.

At the agencies, staff match names with records in their data. They pull those records, then remove all information that could be used to identify which records belong to individual participants. Names, dates of birth, addresses, and any other identifiers are replaced by a random ID number. The process ensures that researchers cannot link the data back to an individual.

Please note the following before consenting to this part of the research:

- Researchers will not link your data with your name or do anything else to identify you in the records. Researchers will write about and share their findings, such as any trends they discover when analyzing the results of the program. Your anonymous data (unlinked from your name or other personal identifiers) may be shared with other researchers for future studies without your additional informed consent. They will not share information about specific individuals and your identity will never be disclosed.
- Researchers may study these records up to fifteen years in the past and any records that may exist up to fifteen years in the future.
 Doing so allows the research team to identify trends that existed in the data before the pilot, as well as the potential long-term impacts of this pilot on those trends.
- You may opt out of this component of the research by revoking your permission at any time. If you wish to revoke your permission, please contact the research team by email at cashstudy@uchicago.edu.

I, Sarah Moran, authorize agencies to disclose my administrative records – including all records containing personally identifiable information as described in the attached Appendix 1 – to researchers evaluating the effects of the Chicago Resilient Communities Pilot. My consent is voluntarily given and will continue unless revoked.

- Yes, I consent
- O No, I do not consent
- Please type your signature

Optional: Your social security number

Why am I being asked this? Providing your SSN will allow the research team to identify the effects of the pilot on participants' employment, wages, and retention. Answers to these questions can inform the creation and design of other cash assistance programs in the future. The Illinois Department of Employment Security (IDES) requires SSN to locate individual earnings records in their data, but researchers will never publish your individual employment record.

Optional: Enter your children's full legal name and date of birth

Why am I being asked this? Providing your children's full name and DOB will allow the research team to understand what impact, if any, this pilot has on the educational outcomes of participants' children. Answers to these questions can inform the creation and design of other cash assistance programs in the future.

Appendix 1: Examples of Sources of Administrative Data

Earnings and employment from Illinois Department of Employment Security (IDES)

Information in these records: Quarterly earnings, employment, unemployment benefits, taxes paid by the employee and the employer(s) to the state, income from different sources, disability income, and employer(s).
